

Newsweek Recognizes USI as One of America's Greatest Workplaces for Diversity

USI is proud to be recognized by Newsweek as one of America's Greatest Workplaces for Diversity in 2024.

Now in its second year, America's Greatest Workplaces for Diversity program organized by Newsweek and Plant-A Insights Group, evaluates companies based on their commitment to recruiting and advancing employees of various ages, races, genders, sexual orientations, and abilities, gathering insights on topics such as working environment, corporate culture, training, proactive management of a diverse workforce and more. This program includes an examination of publicly available data, interviews with HR professionals, and an anonymous online survey conducted among a diverse group of more than 220,000 individuals across 78 industries in America. Learn more.

“We are thrilled to be recognized by Newsweek as one of America's leading employers for diversity. Advancing a workplace culture where all of our more than 10,000 team members feel supported and valued is central to our ability to continuously innovate and deliver best-in-class service and solutions for our clients, prospects and communities.”

- Kim Van Orman, SVP & Chief Human Resources Officer, USI

“USI, at its core, is a problem solver for our clients. If you want to solve the most difficult and complex problems and identify unique and impactful solutions, then diversity of thought is essential. With diverse minds and viewpoints engaging, at USI, we develop the most innovative and robust solutions. Diversity, in all its forms, is mission-critical to how we serve our clients, and we are honored to be recognized for our commitment.”

- Mike Sicard, Chairman & Chief Executive Officer, USI